

Culturally Speaking's 2nd Year Anniversary Edition

October 2012

MESSAGE FROM NANCY PEARLMAN, Executive Director of Educational Communications

ACTIVITIES IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

The variety of activities in southern California are great. Here are some programs, events, and exhibits to keep an eye out for.

EXHIBITS—“The Henkel Physicians: A Family’s Life in Letters” is a travelling exhibition produced by the National Library of Medicine and National Institutes of Health with the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services, www.nlm.nih.gov/hmd/digicolls/henkel/index.html. I discovered this display one day when I went to the Kaiser Permanente Medical Center, West Los Angeles, for a doctor’s appointment. A sign indicated that in the medical library, (6041 Cadillac Ave., Los Angeles 90034) which is open to the public, there was this exhibit that was travelling around the country. Old photographs, copies of letters, and a family genealogical tree describe the work of fathers and sons from the Shenandoah Valley who ministered to their community, tended to their countrymen at Confederate quarters in Virginia during the Civil War, and testified in the courts. It is a fascinating documentation of the difficulties of being physicians especially in treating outbreaks of smallpox, healing broken bones, and preventing the spread of infectious disease.

DRAMA—“Going Green The Wong Way” is a funny one-person show written and performed by Kristina Wong, <http://kristinawong.com>. Rarely are environmental concerns funny but her mix of multi-media, comedy, and drama makes one laugh as she describes her veggie fuel car and then carless lifestyle, her growing up and trying to convince her fellow students to recycle and be more ecological, and her other endeavors into having a greener lifestyle. She evens talks to Mother Earth who, ironically, has a male voice.

“As You Like It” by the Shakespeare Center of Los Angeles, www.ShakespeareCenter.org, was performed in the outdoors Japanese Garden on the grounds of the VA West Los Angeles complex. Even while it rained in the first half of the show, the performers were true troopers and gave a marvelous adaptation of this classic play. Rather than period costumes, they wore more modern attire and yet the interactions still seemed real and relevant. Since the play has scenes that are supposed to be outdoors, it was a very relevant setting with real trees.

FILMS—Be ready next year in September for the 3rd “Short Films Long Night” of Swiss films presented by the Cultural Foreign Policy Centre of the Federal Department of Foreign Affairs and the Consulate General of Switzerland at the Lycee Francais de Los Angeles Theatre Raymond Kabbaz in West Los Angeles. At the 2nd Annual event over 17 short films were shown in one night with some Swiss refreshments during the break. The audience gets to vote on their favorite and the producers, directors, and actors pick up various awards. Free of charge. ### EIN PROSIT DER GEMUETLICHKEIT! Oans, Zwoa, Drei, G’suffa!

It’s Oktoberfest time (well, actually it’s already ending in Bavaria) and - wait, some of you say you can’t read German? I’ve got news for you, you are reading it now, sort of. English and German both derive from a common ancestor going back about 1500 years. Other sisters in this family are Dutch, Flemish, Swedish, Norwegian, Danish and Icelandic - All Germanic languages. Of course they have gone their separate ways for so long that if you hear them you usually can’t understand them.

However, there are still plenty of points of commonality. Let’s take a look at the title of this essay. It means “A Toast to Good Fellowship – 1,2,3, Drink Up”. “Ein” is standard German for “one”. “Prosit” German college students got from Latin for “may it be to your advantage”. “Gemuetlichkeit” means something like “moody” (see the second syllable) which has negative connotations for us, but why not be moody in a good way? The count-out is in Bavarian German where the numbers one and two are more similar to our English numbers: “oans=one” (oh-ahns vs wun) and “zwoa=two” (tsvoh-ah vs the old pronunciation of “twoh” for what we now call “too”) and “drei” (dry) is “three”. So what’s a G’suffa? I’m glad you asked! It seems to me to be our word “sip”, hence, “drink up”.

Speaking of drinking, you might be invited “zu trinken” (to drink) things like: Bier, Wein, Wasser, Milch, Kaffee, Tee (tay). Obvious, aren’t they? While

There I was, at LAX Airport, trying to overcome my anxiety and get excited for my 16 hours flight.

Knowing that for 13 hours I will be seated in a direct flight over the Atlantic Ocean, only to have to change to a second flight, I kept walking around the terminal until boarding time. "Dancers can not sit still specially flamenco dancers." We never stop our footwork...at home, in the elevators, waiting-lines; bank, super market, coffee shops...

Fortunately everything went well. The flight was very smooth. I watched all the movies and ate all the meals. Since the seat next to me was empty - yooohooo - I could take naps too!

A very kind flight attendant woke me up to prepare for landing... there I was; in Istanbul /Turkey.

How exciting! But first I had to go through the airport immigration, change to domestic terminal, and catch my next flight to Ankara.

Three hours later I found myself in Ankara....it was around 10 PM, hopped in a taxi, getting on my way to my hotel; where I was meeting with some family members. They were all patiently waiting for me at the lobby of the hotel, but very hungry since I was somewhat delayed...nothing unusual about it all.

After I checked in to one of the beautiful rooms at Hotel Dedemon, we immediately took another taxi to a restaurant that locals dined. I like places that are not mentioned in a tourists guide...especially for food and shopping. So our driver took us to one of the best restaurants in town. Food and ambiance was great!

It was late at night but the city was still lively. We began our very first night with a great meal and lots of laughter.

Ankara, the capital of Turkey is a very calm and quiet city. People are very relaxed ... Amazing places to see in Ankara Citadel: Ataturk, Kocatepe Mosque, Haci Bayram Mosque, Museum of the War of Independence, Sengul Hamam, Ethnographic Museum, Genclik Park, Roman Baths, Temple of Augustus, Column of Julian, Anatolian Civilizations Museum and many more.

Next came Istanbul...

Rich in culture, arts, music and dance, and many more...and very fast paced! Packed with European tourists. This is another city that never sleeps...Great places to visit like Kariye Museum, Historic Areas of Istanbul, Hagia Sophia Museum, Sultanahmet District, Suleymaniye Mosque, Bosphorus Strait, Topkapi Palace, Istiklal Street, Beyoglu, Ortakoy, bagdat Street, Rumeli Fotress, Galata Tower, Miniaturk, The Bosphorus Bridge, Walls of Constantinople, Haydarpasa Terminal, Yildiz Park, St Anthony of Padua, and many more.

I had a wonderful time in Turkey. I was amazed at how so many Farsi and Turkish words are similar in both languages.

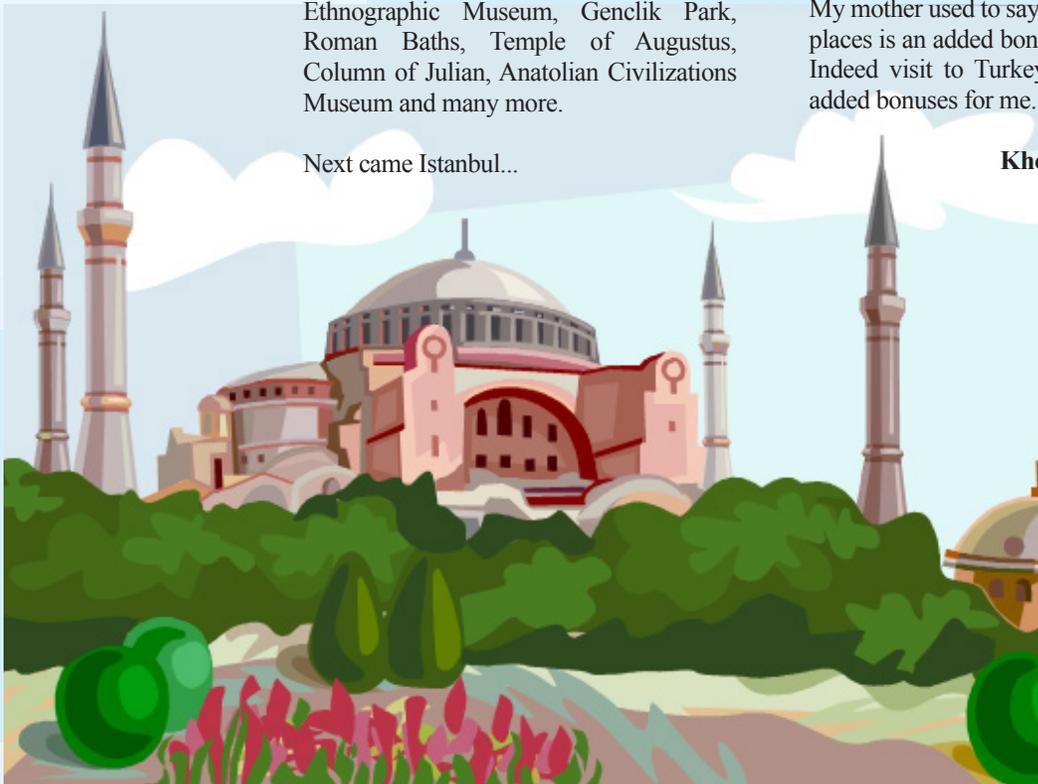

I met great Turkish people...had great food and delicious Turkish sweets...visited beautiful historic places, not to forget to mention the authentic Turkish Bath...Halleluiah!!!!

I will definitely go back and explore other cities and the country's Mediterranean seaside. The nostalgic piece of my trip was that my Hometown, Tehran, IRAN was only 2 hours away and I had an strong urge to go there...Maybe next time!

My mother used to say: "Traveling to great places is an added bonus to your lifetime." Indeed visit to Turkey was one of those added bonuses for me...

NANCY RECOMMENDS...

by Nancy Pearlman

Recently I have had the pleasure to visit and enjoy tasty food at a variety of restaurants.

Brooklyn Pizza & Pasta, 9228 W. Pico Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90035, (310) 550-9992, has tasty appetizers, sandwiches, salads, and home-style baked specialities (eggplant, lasagna, penne, etc.), pasta (spaghetti, linguini, etc.) along with their award-winning pizzas. The International Pizza Expo made them the 2012 Winner in the Best Traditional Pizza category, Southwest Region. They have delivery, take out or dine in. Info: BrooklynPizzaAndPasta.net.

Chalet Edelweiss Restaurant & Bar, 8740 Sepulveda Blvd, Westchester, CA 90045, (310) 645-8740, near LAX, has real Swiss chefs cook in front of your eyes and they insist on excellence and freshness. If you can't get to Switzerland to taste cheese fondue, you can try it here. Many months they have a special dinner and Swiss movie special as well.

Swiss Chef Restaurant at San Remo, 13727 Victory Blvd., Valley Glen, CA 91401, (818) 904-1500, is another true Swiss food restaurant. Just west of Woodman in the San Fernando Valley of Los Angeles, their chefs provide real dishes from Switzerland.

The Stinking Rose: A Garlic Restaurant, 55 N. La Cienega, Beverly Hills, 90211, (310) 652-7673, has unusual indoor decor. As they state "We season our garlic with food!" so it is fun to try their fish, meat, and pasta dishes, and even deserts all flavored with garlic.

Tart Restaurant, 115 Fairfax Avenue, Los Angeles, CA 90036, gives you the chance for a free meal if you jump in their pool with your clothes on and your cell phone. Or get 5$ off the bill if you wear a cowboy hat. Their "Meat n' Three" combos for $15.99 feature meats and fish as well as vegetarian choices plus a choice of three sides of salads and/or vegetables.

Zuby's Cafe, 3131 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, CA 91767 (909) 596-6666, combines Italian and Persian cuisine for unique flavors. They have veggie dinners and pizzas as well as meat kabobs, wraps, and sandwiches. They have a card to stamp so that if you eat there four times, the fifth one is for free.

El Coyote Mexican Cafe, 7312 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, CA, (323) 939-2255, has beautiful walls decorated with creative mosaics of mirrors and shells and servers in traditional Mexican dress. This historic 1931 restaurant continues to provide its enchiladas, tacos, burritos, tamales, and chile rellanos with the usual rice and beans.

As always,
don't forget the hungry.

you might not follow a conversation on nuclear physics, some subject areas show the old kinship. Body parts make a good example. "Haar" "Ohr" "Augen" "Nase" "Lippen" "Mund" "Zaehne" "Zunge" "Kinn" "Schulter" "Arm" "Ellenbogen" "Hand" "Finger" "Fingernagel". Do you recognize them? A few might take some thought, but three of them are even spelled the same as in English, although they sound a little different. Foreign languages aren't so alien when you recognize the kinship and look for the similarities. Understanding one another is what makes a social occasion - ready for it? - GEMUETLICH!

EXPOS—Save time next July to go the preeminent gift show on the West Coast. The California Gift Show at the Los Angeles Convention Center, with permanent showrooms at the LA Mart, has over 200,000 square feet, 10,000 product lines, and 1,200 exhibitors. I especially liked the ethnic clothes, jewelry, and other items. Many companies were also promoting new green products, many from recycled materials. Info: www.californiagiftshow.com.

CONCERTS AND PLAYS—Each summer California Plaza in downtown Los Angeles provides free programs. Info: www.grandperformances.org, (213) 687-2159. They had a riveting one-man play by Ian Ruskin about the longshoreman-turned-Union leader Harry Bridges; Ethan Lipton’s “No Place to Go” musical ode; a theatrical work, “The Agony and Ecstasy of Steve Jobs,” and an all Gershwin songfest. There was also the world premiere of a philanthropic orchestral opus, “A Symphony of Hope” featuring a 70-piece orchestra and a 40-voice choir with a score created by a collective of Hollywood composers, all to raise funds for the thousands of lives affected by the 2010 earthquake in Haiti. The composition opens with a traditional Haitian melody and each following movement is the result of the participating artists’ contributions of 8-32 bars of music in collaborative succession. The five movements take the listener on an impressive aural journey of Haitian life before, during, and after the earthquake. An incredible collaboration by 25 Oscar, Tony, Grammy, and Emmy award-winning composers. ## MUSIC NEWS

The very first performances anywhere in the world of S. POLONSKI'S COMPLETE SET OF SONGS by forces organized by the Arbeter Ring (Workmen's Circle) in Los Angeles (2008) and Tucson (2009), drew a wildly enthusiastic and appreciative response, given that only one song in this collection, "A krenetse/A Well," ever became widely known in the West. The Songbook we uncovered for these performances is a rare item few scholars even knew about. Yiddish culture enjoyed a spotty and often tragic career in the USSR, but we offered these songs as a record of a fleeting, uplifting moment, and as a legacy to the future for us to discover and cherish. The CD will render all 19 songs faithfully, creatively, and professionally, with "name" vocal talent and fresh instrumental arrangements by one of our favorite Yiddish musicians, our friend (and AR member) Yale Strom.

Your contribution to The Sholem Educational Institute, Inc., a nonprofit 501c3 corporation (Federal Tax ID Number 95-2112000), is tax-deductible to the full extent of the law. Donations of any size are welcome. The faster we raise our production budget, the sooner we can get on to producing the CD. All contributions of $54 or more (Triple Khay) will be acknowledged in print in the accompanying CD booklet (unless you wish to remain anonymous). ## POETRY NEWS

FIFTH ANNUAL PETS ADD LIFE CHILDREN'S POETRY CONTEST RETURNS SEPT. 1 - JAN. 31

American Pet Products Association (APPA) encourages students in grades 3rd-8th to submit creative poems for a shot at scholarship dollars and other pet prizes.

(Greenwich, CT) – Calling all creative students! Bob Vetere, APPA President, is pleased to announce that beginning Sat., September 1, 2012 the organization will be accepting submissions for its 5th Annual Pets Add Life Children's Poetry Contest. Students are encouraged to write unique poems about the joys and benefits of owning pets for a chance at top prizes.

"It's so fun to read all the poems every year and really see how much of an impact pets have on these young kids," Vetere said. "With more than 1,000 poems submitted for the last contest, we look forward to continuing the momentum in our fifth year and encourage even more students to participate. It truly is a great opportunity for kids to creatively express their love of hermit crabs, fish, rabbits, dogs, cats, horses, and everything in between, while competing for some really great prizes."

Students in grades 3rd-8th are invited to write a unique poem about their pets, what they love about them and the joys they bring, and then post it online at www.PetsAddLife.org or mail their final poem and submission form to: Pets Add Life, 661 Sierra Rose Dr., Reno, NV 89511. Deadline for submissions is January 31, 2013 at 5:00pm EST.

In addition, teachers within the contest grade levels are welcome to incorporate this national contest into their lesson plans, and submit poems in one entry, on behalf of his/her classroom.

One student from each grade level (6 total) nationwide will win a $250 gift certificate for pet products, and a "by-line" in a nationally circulated publication. In addition, the six winning students' classrooms will each win a $1,000 scholarship to spend on pet-related education or to support a pet in their classroom.

To learn more about the Pets Add Life Children's Poetry Contest, read previous winning poems, upload your submission, or download a printed submission form, please visit www.petsaddlife.org or contact Brooke Gersich at The Impetus Agency, 775.322.4022 or Brooke@theimpetusagency.com
